JULY DONATION UPDATE

The Huntington Beach Neighborhood Watch Program (HBNW) fiscal year is from July 1 to June 30 each year. We have estimated we will need approximately $24,300 this year to cover the various HBNW program expenses which include, but are not limited to, newsletter assembly, distribution costs, returned postage, mailing labels, etc. From the start of our fiscal year to now, we have received $2,887.31 in donations and newsletter advertisements— we have $21,412.69 to go by June 30, 2015. The HBNW Board thanks you and our advertisers for your support and generous donations. An $8 donation pays for each subscriber’s distribution costs; a $10 donation helps with these costs and other needed expenses and puts your name in the Newsletter as a contributor; and a $25 or more donation accomplishes the above, plus you will receive a HBNW sticker and a token of appreciation. Remember, HBNW is a non-profit organization; donations are tax deductible.

As a resident of the city, we encourage you to review the HBNW program budget and expenses. We strongly suggest you sign up to receive your Newsletter either electronically or through the mail. The Newsletter has valuable crime prevention information and crime statistics. Donations are not necessary to receive the Newsletter, but if you wish to make a donation, please make your check payable to:

Data Breaches, Medical Identity Theft, and Fraud

www.consumer-action.org/modules

Will I be notified of a data breach?

California law requires any company that collects personal information to notify all California residents in its database if there is a breach of their unencrypted personal information, including medical and health insurance information.

The notice must include the date and time of the breach, a general description of the incident, and the types of information at risk. It also must include the toll-free telephone numbers and addresses of the major credit reporting agencies if the breach exposed a Social Security number or a driver’s license or California ID card number.

You can view or search a list of data breaches on the California Attorney general’s website (http://oag.ca.gov/ecrime/databreach/list).

What should I do if I’m notified that my information has been breached?

That depends on what parts of your personal information have been accessed. Read Privacy Rights Clearinghouse’s “Fact Sheet 17b: How to Deal with a Security Breach” (https://www.privacyrights.org/fs/fs17b-SecurityBreach.htm) to find out what steps to take to protect yourself after the incident. These steps might include filing a police report, monitoring your credit reports, using a fraud alert, or notifying your creditors, health care providers, medical insurance provider and others.

What is medical identity theft?

Medical identity theft occurs when someone steals your personal information---often your health insurance account number, your Medicare or Medi-Cal number or your Social Security number---and uses it to obtain health care, prescriptions and other medical services in your name or make false insurance claims to medical goods and services. Your medical coverage information can be stolen in a variety of ways, including directly from your medical records, from a form you fill out, or from ID cards you keep in your wallet.

What are the possible repercussions of medical identity theft?

- The repercussions of medical identity theft can be very serious:
  - Your health care provider could treat you for a disease you don’t have, prescribe a medication you are allergic to, not prescribe a necessary medication because your records mistakenly show you are already taking it, or give you the wrong blood in a transfusion because your record reflects the identity thief’s blood type.
  - You could be denied insurance coverage (life or long-term care, for example) because the underwriter believes you had a serious disease you don’t have. You could be turned down for a job or promotion because your health record makes it look like you have a medical issue that would not allow you to perform new job duties.
  - You could be asked to pay for medical services that would normally be covered by your insurance because the identity thief has caused you to reach the coverage limit under your policy.
  - You could be contacted by collectors because the identity thief has run up unpaid medical bills. Your credit score could be damaged, leading to declined loan applications or higher interest rates when you borrow.

What are the signs of medical ID theft?

Some signs of medical identity theft are:

- Medical bills for services you have not received;
- Calls from collectors about medical bills you don’t recognize; and
- Being told you’ve reached your medical insurance coverage limit even though you don’t believe you have.

How can I prevent medical identity theft?

You can reduce the chances of becoming a medical identity theft victim by taking some precautions:

- Keep health care records, insurance statements, bills and other medical paperwork filed in a safe place, and shred what you don’t need to keep.
- If possible, try to avoid giving out your Social Security number or try to limit it to the last four digits.

- Review all medical bills, the insurance “explanation of benefits” you received after each visit or claim, and any other paperwork related to your medical treatment and health insurance carefully to be sure you were the one to receive all the services, treatments, prescriptions, tests or supplies described. Contact the health care provider or your health plan or insurance company to go over anything that looks inaccurate.
- Don’t give out your sensitive information in exchange for “free” medical services, tests, drug samples, etc.

What should I do if I’m a victim of medical identity theft?

The Federal Trade Commission (http://www.consumer.ftc.gov/articles/0171-medical-identity-theft) and the World Privacy Forum (http://www.worldprivacyforum.org/medidtheft_consumertips.html) both offer detailed information about dealing with medical identity theft, from filing a police report or Identity Theft Affidavit to removing erroneous information from your medical records.

Assistance and information

See the “Health Records privacy in California: Protecting your privacy as patient records go digital” brochure for information about where to file a complaint if you believe your privacy rights have been violated. The following are resources that provide additional information about your health records privacy rights:

California Office of Health Information Integrity (CalOHII) (www.ohii.ca.gov/calohi): Site visitors will find extensive information about California medical privacy laws and enforcement. The “Patient FAQ” (www.ohii.ca.gov/privacy360/Patients/PatientFAQ.aspx), “Provider FAQ” (www.ohii.ca.gov/privacy360/Providers/ProviderFAQ.aspx) and “Individual’s rights to Medical Information Privacy FAQs” (http://www.ohii.ca.gov/calohi/MedicalPrivacyEnforcement/ReportingViolation/FAQs.aspx) pages are particularly helpful.

Medical Board of California (http://www.mbc.ca.gov): Among other topics, the California Medical Board’s website include pages on patient access to medical records (Http://www.mbc.ca.gov/consumer/access_records.html) and related questions and answers (http://www.mbc.ca.gov/consumer/complaint_info_questions_records.html).

Privacy Rights Clearinghouse (www.privacyrights.org): Offers a large online library of materials on medical privacy (https://www.privacyrights.org/Medical-Privacy) and electronic health records exchange, some of it California-specific.

On Thursday, Sept 18th, join Huntington Beach Police Officers for dinner and fun as they help raise funds for the Special Olympics. Officers and police personnel will be assisting to serve your dinner and refreshments. We hope you will consider giving them an extra tip that will go towards the Special Olympics. There will be a silent auction, raffles, our antique police car, the SWAT vehicle (“BEAR”) and much more. Enjoy a good meal, spend time with friends, meet the Officers and other personnel, and be a part of all the activities and fun, all for a good cause.

Look for more information in next month’s newsletter. The date and location are below; be sure to mark your calendar and tell a friend:
